Some Good Stuff
Posted by Jdee - 29 Nov 2011 15:33

I get this stuff by the case. Since I paint for a living this does not get in the air and mess up jobs and it just works great.

Use in on my folders and around the shop.

Oh I get a case at a time cuz folks like to grab a can when the stop in, friends and family .

Neat stuff , I use it on my WEPS and knifes and soon to buy gunz.

Thanks for sharing this Jdee. Haven't ever seen it before. I've been using tufglide and have been very happy with its performance (I use the needle applicator bottles)

I'll have to get a can and check it out - good dry lubricants that stand up are hard to find

Thanks JDee. Would be nice if we could test some of the lubricants comparatively. We've had stropping compounds already, I've read comparative reviews of stones and strops, but never of lubricants.

I always used Tuf-glide as well, but recently switched to nano oil since a number of people in my surroundings were very positive about this. But really, all evidence I have seen for whatever lubricant is anecdotal.

Update: Gibbs tuff is apparently made by the same company that makes Tuff-glide. Interesting... they should be able to provide some comparison.
