You can preview your post!!

So, after asking if we could have a "Preview" button for our posts, I learned today there already is one! (Two actually).

Handy for at least making sure your quotes and other codes look right.

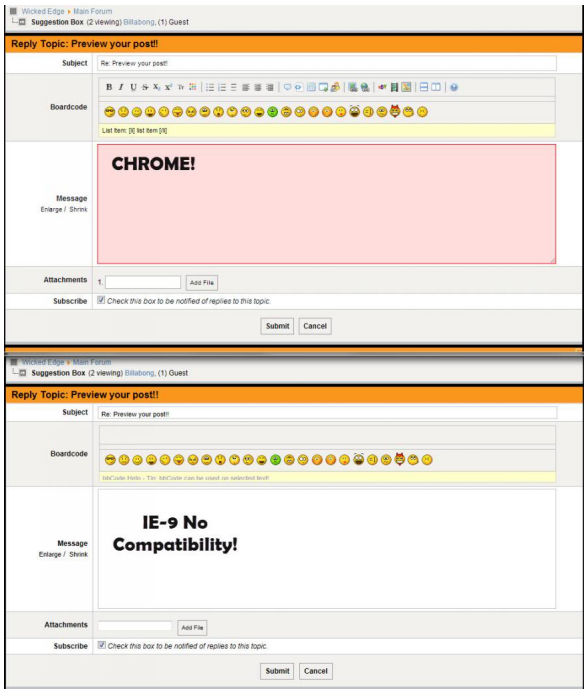
Would be nice if the admin guy made this site Internet Explorer 9 compatible.



I see he is online now, I PM'd him a while ago with no reply.

Can someone please consult him?

Even with compatibility mode turned on, other things are misaligned.

An upgrade is needed.

Great, you can see the whole toolbar is missing in IE-9 for me.

Can someone please confirm this behaviour for them also?

Hoping it's not A/V doing this.

The web guy is looking at upgrading the forum to the most current version. Hopefully that will happen next week.

Works just fine for me... with IE 9.

If it didn't, and I had Chrome...and it worked there... I would probably just use chrome.

I'm more about fixing a problem than hiding it.

Have you turned compatibility mode off in IE-9 to test it?

I talked with our webmaster about it a lot last week. We're waiting to hear back from a third party software provider to see if there will be a conflict. We use a bridge software to connect our webstore to our financial software and don't know yet if it's compatible with the newest version of our site platform and forum extension.
