Task Specific Sharpening Section

Posted by wickededge - 01 Dec 2012 12:41

Hey guys, I'm thinking of adding a new section dedicated to task specific sharpening so we might have sub-forums for cooking, hunting, EDC, bushcraft etc... What do you guys think? Would you want to contribute in those areas, share your experiences and strategies?

==========

Re: Task Specific Sharpening Section

Posted by cbwx34 - 03 Dec 2012 16:09

Is this going to be a main section with subsections? If so, you might add an "Other" to cover knives that may not show up as often, like a woodworking knife, or special tool of some sort, that someone might want to add.

==========

Re: Task Specific Sharpening Section

Posted by Geocyclist - 03 Dec 2012 21:17

Can you subdivide "EDC" into smaller categories? Such as light, medium, heavy EDC ? Don't know how you define those ?

Light = open envelopes

Medium = in between

Heavy = cut cardboard and tie straps all day long

Would "touch ups" be task specific? or would touch ups go under each type of sharpening? Just talking out loud here. For me I touch up my kitchen knives differently than my EDC knives.

==========

Re: Task Specific Sharpening Section

Posted by xuzme720 - 04 Dec 2012 12:10

For my money, I'd say touch ups as part of the individual types since it really is just an extension of the sharpening regimens.

==========