Be careful when buying LocTite...
Posted by cbwx34 - 20 Jan 2013 13:00

... they sell SuperGlue too!

Discovered this when I went to purchase some the other day... the scary part was, the clerk actually directed me to this bottle!

So, be careful!

==========

Re: Be careful when buying LocTite...
Posted by mark76 - 20 Jan 2013 13:20

==========

Re: Be careful when buying LocTite...
Posted by KenBuzbee - 20 Jan 2013 14:02

Yeah, I saw that the other day and had the same thought.

Ken

==========

Re: Be careful when buying LocTite...
Posted by cbwx34 - 20 Jan 2013 14:39

---

mark76 wrote:

Couldnt've said it better!!!

==========

Re: Be careful when buying LocTite...
Posted by DennisHibar - 20 Jan 2013 20:00

What makes this even more funny (in a frightening way) is that "blue" LocTite is most often recommended for securing knife screws and such!!! Wouldn't want to use this particular "blue" LocTite!!!!

==========

Re: Be careful when buying LocTite...
Posted by cbwx34 - 20 Jan 2013 20:58

That's exactly what I was getting it for.

==========

Re: Be careful when buying LocTite...
Posted by ApexGS - 21 Jan 2013 00:26

I actually just bought some of this because it was on sale for raving cheap at Staples. All of my loctite is in smaller tubes so the bottle stands out pretty easily but it never hurts to be too careful!

==========

Re: Be careful when buying LocTite...
Posted by Geocyclist - 21 Jan 2013 00:48

Also be careful (this may be only industrial bottle, not commercial), the blue and red lactate both come in red bottles. The red has a small red bar on the label, and the blue has a blue bar Otherwise they are very similar.

I grabbed a bottle of red by accident, but luckily checked the label before using it.

Also I don't recommend keeping super glue and eye drops in the same drawer.

==========